

Basis for ADM 1 and 2

CAR ADM 1s and 2s are based on the outline provided by <http://webs.ono.com/juanfandos/> (accessed 2010-04-20)

It has been crosschecked with <http://www.statoids.com/ucf.html> (accessed 2010-04-20) and correspond. The latter seems to have made use of the work of the former however.

The higher divisions were also found on the <http://centrafricaine.info/en.html> (accesses 2010-04-20) and correspond although other names were used in some cases. Statoids.com provides a list of alternative names.

<http://webs.ono.com/juanfandos/> provides a historic outline of the subprefectures and it seems like some new ones were created (this is based on inference as no history nor former rulers were noted before 2 May 2002).

When crosschecking with Wikipedia, the “new additions” were included, although a few other subprefectures seemed to be lacking when compared to the list from juanfandos. Wikipedia also presented some pairs of subprefectures as one entity... Wikipedia provided a link to <http://webs.ono.com/juanfandos/>, although it was not clear if anything, what exactly was retrieved from this page....

Hence, the list provided by <http://webs.ono.com/juanfandos/> (see sections on Prefectures and Subprefectures) will be used as a basis when geocoding. Info on alternative names and possibly some additional info provided by <http://www.statoids.com/ucf.html> will also be used.
